“A library outranks any other one thing a community can do to benefit its people.

It is a never failing spring in the desert.” - Andrew Carnegie

The Henderson County Public Library is an original Carnegie library that has served the community since 1904. The Friends of the Library organization plays a vital role in growing the library’s resources and services.

The Friends of the Library members recognize the value of the library. By advocating, fundraising, and volunteering, the Friends show that they believe the library is an essential asset to Henderson County.

Friends of the Library funds are used to purchase materials and to advance programs for the Henderson County Public Library. The Friends of the Library is a charitable organization and all contributions are tax deductible.

Take a look at how the Friends of the Library made a difference in 2013-2014!
